This story was originally published in Day One, a weekly literary journal dedicated to short fiction and poetry from emerging writers.

When Elizabeth comes home from her first year of college for Thanksgiving, she finds that things have changed. Blackbirds have started falling from the sky, turning her suburban hometown into something out of a strange horror movie, and her best friend, Leila, is in trouble. Over the course of Thanksgiving weekend, their friendship is put to the test: Leila, depressed and lonely, wants to go back to how things were before they went off to college, while Elizabeth, happy with her new life, wants to move on. Things come to a head at a party, when Elizabeth begins to understand the depth of Leila's pain but chooses to ignore it. The Birds on Peach Street is a story of what it means to grow up, sometimes at the cost not only of your childhood self but also of your childhood friends.
