Hear Me Roar: Women, Motorcycles and the Rapture of the Road, New Ed. Ann Ferrar

Written by a journalist from the saddle of her motorcycle, this book chronicles the bold world of women in motorcycling: the myths, the history, and subcultures of free-spirited riders with a passion for two wheels and the road. This is the first account of this little-known facet of women's rocky road to personal independence in America. Packed with stories and photographs of pioneering women and their machines from the first grande dames who hitched up their skirts to ride motorized bicycles at the turn of the century to the high-tech drag racers, stuntwomen and exotic adventure riders of today. "A woman's symphony on the road." The New York Times.

David Briggs:

As a scholar exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library or make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's internal or real their interest. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring along with can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever you want. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Hear Me Roar: Women, Motorcycles and the Rapture of the Road, New Ed. can make you sense more interested to read.
